GROW GIBLIN'S
GLADIOLI

GROWN BY
ROBERT A. GIBLIN
SPRING VALLEY, N. Y.
To My Old Customers and New Friends.

In offering this my 1923 catalogue for your consideration, my policy is to urge people to grow the best but not to pose as an authority. What constitutes the best is a matter of opinion for the individual to decide and this can only be done by observation or word picture.

It is not a question of price but one of selection for I have seen people rave about Panama and not care for other pinks costing dollars more. While most people like all colors they usually have a preference for one or two so my suggestion is to make comparisons and then discard undesirable varieties.

As Gladioli have such characteristics as to size of bloom and spike and ways of use, that one must consider if for house or garden effect and color in each instance. To help the buyer select their particular color, I have arranged my lists in separate colors but have a very select mixture of all colors.

The varieties I list are those my experience tells me are among the best; and if you really enjoy growing flowers you will have the best. When making your selection please remember the varieties offered and the prices asked are for first size bulbs and flowering plants.

With this understanding I solicit your business with the hope of giving entire satisfaction or refunding your money. Postage is paid on 12 bulbs or 6 plants in the United States.

CULTURE

It is true the Gladiolus will grow in any soil offering an existence and so will a human being exist under the poorest of conditions but if each were given the proper conditions in which to live and grow how much healthier and finer they would develop. The better care the greater the reward. Grow in good soil, plant four inches deep and double the diameter apart if for mass effect. Keep the top soil loose and free from weeds. When up three inches apply powdered sheep manure and give plenty of water. As bud is formed give more manure to intensify the color. When cutting bloom, always allow about four leaves to remain on the plant. Dig bulbs any time before ground freezes and stalk is yet green. Cut the stalk close to bulb and dry well before storing in the cellar which must be frost proof and not below 40 degrees. The sooner cleaned the better. Remove the old bulb and roots, but not the outside skin.
EFFECTIVE USE OF GLADIOLI

To hide the barrenness of the ground, sow the annual Baby’s Breath (Gypsophila) as a carpet flower. The snowwhite blooms are always a pleasing contrast to the existing shades in Gladioli. As the flowers last about three weeks, make sowings every two weeks in the same spot up to time of the first bloom. Thereafter, they reseed themselves for the balance of the season.

Many of the cream and yellow varieties, particularly Niagara combine beautifully with lavender Phlox and Ageratum. Another lovely picture is to combine a dark brown red Salpiglossis as the background and a hardy purple Phlox in front. The cream varieties also blend well with a lavender hardy Aster. For a striking contrast, use evergreens for a background with the tall red varieties.

The keeping qualities of the Gladiolus as a cut flower are quite remarkable. If the spike is cut early in the morning when color is noticed on the first bud, put in hot water for a minute and then in cold with daily fresh changes, cutting the ends a trifle while in the fresh water, all the buds will open and last over a week. It is claimed that if the very end bud in pinched off it enables the others to open larger.

For house decoration the Gladiolus lends itself admirably. With its great variety of colors to choose from, one can always find flowers to blend with any room. If there is a blue room, try a vase of Alice Tiplady, and you will be pleased. Also use a few spikes of Delphinium Belladonna with this variety and you have another pleasing effect. For a change, try a vase of Proserpine and again you will be delighted with the harmony of color. A good combination with most any one of the pink varieties, is to use a few sprays of Delphinium Belladonna. Use Alice Tiplady with Mr. Mark or Herada, Golden Glory with any purple and Proserpine with Niagara.

For table use, a few spikes separately of Liss, Red Emperor, Mrs. Watt, Pink Wonder, Herada and etc., are always attractive, or make your own combinations to blend with furnishings.
